Mixed use high rise building report

A key recommendation of the 2009 review was to explore the effects of extending the scheme to include mixed-use high-rise buildings that are not predominantly for commercial use. While not specifically mentioned in the 2012 terms of reference, many of the stakeholders contacted by the review raised the issue.

In response to the recommendation that this issue is re examined prior to the 2015 review, ARPC has provided the Government with briefings on the implications of this classification of buildings remaining uninsured against terrorism incidents.
